FOREST.

(Nos. 54 to 67.)

Summary of discussion.—(1) The extension of State Forests in the malnad causes great hardship and materially affects the rights of the people. In the malnad, even more than in the maidan, wood and fuel are necessary for the welfare of the raiyats. As all district forests are now vested in the people, their inclusion among State Forests encroaches on the rights of the people. No new State Forests may be formed in the malnad.

(2) In some places, State Forests are too close to inhabited villages. A limit of distance may be laid down.

Reply of Government.—No general orders can be passed. Specific cases of hardship may be brought to the notice of the Conservator of Forests when the needful will be done.
